Romanesque bridge of Sant Antoni de la Grella
The villages of La Massana, with their special enchantment important Romanesque legacy, help us travel in time, to cross the threshold of the middle ages and take ourselves back to the Europe of centuries ago, so that we can feel like citizens in medieval Andorra.
Cultivation of tobacco in Sispony
La Massana is the fourth parish in protocol order, and the earliest historical references are found in the Act of Consecration of the Urgell Cathedral in the 9th century, where it is called Maciana. For centuries the main economic activity of the area was agriculture and livestock, although from the 16th century the forges became more important as the iron industry developed. Later, in the 18th and 19th centuries, the iron industry was very significant, and we find its traditions in the forges.

In the mid-20th century the country was opened up to tourism, which meant the beginnings of the Principality as we know it today.

In 1972 the Arinsal ski station opened, and after, in 1982 the Pal ski station opened, marking the identity of the area and becoming one of the reference points in mountain tourism. The Vallnord skiing area, with its Pal-Arinsal and Ordino-Arcalis stations, is the economic motor of the area today.

Churches

Sant Climent - Pal

From the 11th and 12th centuries, the major part of the original Romanesque structure is preserved, with an elegant bell tower in the Lombard style on three floors with paired windows, the last of which has double windows, unique in Andorra. Open July and August.

Sant Cristòfol - Anyós

On a 12th century Romanesque base, but much altered. It still preserves a Last Supper in the protogothic style dating from the 14th century, a altarpiece by Joan de Monterde and a pictorial cycle from the 16th century dedicated to Sant Cristòfol. Open July and August.

Sant Andreu - Arinsal

From the 17th century, restored completely in 1964 following a project by the Catalan architect Cèsar Martinell. The interior holds a little baroque carving of Sant Andreu and an altarpiece from the 17th century dedicated to the Virgin of Roser.

Sant Iscle and Santa Victòria
La Massana

17th century parish church, built over an ancient medieval church. A holy water stoup and an iron candelabrum have been preserved from the medieval times. Inside there are five baroque altarpieces.

Sant Andreu del Prat del Campanar - Arinsal

Private property, this is a 20th century reconstruction of a primitive Romanesque church which was destroyed by two avalanches.

Sant Romà - Erts

From the 18th century, built in a place close to the ancient Romanesque chapel. It has a steeple bell tower with two openings above the entrance and a porch. It preserves a baroque altarpiece from the old church with paintings of the martyrdom of Sant Romà.

Sant Joan - Sispony

Building constructed in the 17th century, very possibly on the foundations of an earlier medieval building. Inside is a pictorial cycle with representations of the holy sacrament and the Passion of Christ by the 19th century painter Josep Oromí.

Sant Ermengol - L’Aldosa

From the 18th and 19th centuries, with a nave on a rectangular plan, square apse and steeple bell tower. Inside the church an altarpiece is preserved which combines a baroque panel with paintings on canvas, attributed to the painter Oromí de la Seu.

Sant Antoni de la Grella - La Massana

Built into the rock of the Valira d’Orient river gorges. Chapel of Romanesque origin, almost entirely reconstructed. Dedicated to Sant Antoni Abat, patron of carters.
There unlimited possibilities for fun. The most demanding activities can be combined with others to suit the whole family, such as trekking, mountain bike and golf. And of course, in the winter, the greatest feature is the snow. The white silence will enchant you...

For all beginners and everyone who wants to improbé their technique, Vallnord has a downhill school directed by famous rider Soraya Drici and with qualified instructors.
Vallnord Bike Park La Massana offers mountain bike fans more than forty kilometres of downhill runs, with differing grades of difficulty and with descents of over a thousand metres. You can reach the downhill circuits by the three lifts specially adapted during the summer: the cable car from La Massana and the detachable chair lifts from La Serra I and El Cubil. In fact, the last of these is for access to the more technical circuits and with the biggest drop in altitude, only suitable for the most professional riders. The area also includes an endurance circuit and a cross country itinerary.
Vallnord Bike Park La Massana offers its users an MTB school, led by the local riders. With a team of professional trainers, the school offers lessons for beginners or to improve performance, adapted to each rider’s level.

These individual or group lessons introduce riders to the world of mountain biking, and transmit the knowledge and skills required by downhill biking, while providing the maximum possible safety conditions.

Traditional gastronomy is on offer everywhere in mountain dishes such as the Andorran “carn d’olla” (boiled meats), baked snails and stews; roasts with honey, sliced pork with a sweet’n’sour flavour imparted by a treatment with honey and vinegar; chops cooked on a hot stone, fries with lard and salads with a touch of garlic; or ribs of beef. Other very typical dishes are civets of wild boar or hare, marinated partridge, mixed chopped vegetables and omelettes. Among desserts there are sweetened flat breads, fried sweet pastries, honey and cottage cheese, and the so-called “musicians” dessert, based on dried fruit and nuts. The “bordes” or inns are buildings found outside the urban centres, in the countryside, where there is a warm and agreeable atmosphere which offers good feelings, not only for the food.

A special occasion is the “Escudella” on St. Anthony’s Day, which takes place every 17 January in La Massana, when this really delicious dish can be enjoyed free.
